LEONARD-WELSH BOUT TO-NIGHT SHOULD BE FAST

MY WORD !

Knock Out Weish To-

O-NIGHT in Washington Park Brooklyn, Freddy Weish and enny Leonard will fight ten or less. In all probability it be ten rounds, although Billy expresses his confidence in cony's ability to knock Freddy out. eist has been training hard for the fest and has just been through a few other matches. Although he goes in at catchweights the light-weight champion will probably scale under 140 pounds. Leonard will be within the lightweight limit of 131 pounds stripped, unless he has de-veloped a great appetite during the past few days, for he scaled 133 last laturday. This means that Leonard must have trained off the fat that made him so slow in his last bout with Dundee. The bout should he last Leonard promises to try for a knockout, and says he'd prefer to put it over in the first round, if bossible. goes in at catchweights, the light Leonard's one chance is to daze welsh, take away his speed, and then hit him on the chin hard enough to keep him down for a good healthy ten seconds. As long as Freddy deesn't slow up he will be able to avoid heavy punishment and slip by without risking a knockout. He is a remarkably vigorous specimen, considering the many years he has been in the ring. His endurance seems to be inimpaired, although since winning the championship he has lived a much easier life than when he was a title hunter.

Billy Referee because he has been referee because he has been taken around the country by which to referee several of his houts, will be the third man in the ring. Reche is to referee for Weish in Colerade, on Labor Day, when Weish meets White. It is a certainty that Reche will refrain from giving Fred and the state of the season of the season.

HAVING plenty of seating capacity, the Washington Park Sporting Club has reduced its prices for this fight. Five thousand of the seats cost $1 each. Other grandstand seats run up to $4, tier for seats $7 and ringside box seats $10. The ring has been shifted since the Dillon-Moran bout, and is now nearer the grandstands, which will make it better for those holding low-priced seats.

BILLY GIBSON has wired a provisional acceptance of the offer from Colorado to put Leonard more from Colorado to put Leonard with White on Labor Day if Leonard knocks out Weish. Gibson says that Leonard, if he gets the Utile, will not be a no-decision chamthat Leonard, if he gets the title, will not be a no-decision champion. This will be quite a change for Benny, who never fought a long-decision fight in his life, having been brought up on the ten-round no-decision stuff from the start. Nohody knows just how well he will perform in a long fight, although it seems quite reasonable that, being young, strong and not too heavily muscled he will have the endurance that will make him fit for any distance when trained for it.

As a general our former Mr.

As a general our former Mr. Mathewson is slowly but surely introducing to the great pastime new ideas. It is evidently his purpose to make a pitcher go the route whenever he steps into the box for a start. In the opening game he did not have a pitcher coarming up at any time. In the warming up at any time. In the second he allowed one twirler in second he allowed one twirler in the bullpen, and even he pitched but a few balls. The man who started had to take his medicine, and he did. There are many who believe Matty's idea a good one. Lots of fans hold the opinion that ball games are ruined by the frequent changing of pitchers. So far Matty has not taken a man from the bol.

The soundness of the Mathewson pitching policy was shown in the last half of the ninth, when Toney apparently weakened. After filling the bases with none out the usual policy is to yank that pitcher right out of there and trot in another. But Mathewson did nothing of the sort. Toney was told to stick on the job, and he proved that it was a good idea by retiring three men without permitting a score.

Jack Doyle, who sat with us in the press box, explaining that he was doing a little slumming, advanced an idea that catchers may use to advantage.

"I've often wondered," said Jack, "I've often wondered," said Jack,

IS CLOSEST ON RECORD.

The race for the American League pennant is the closest in the history of baseball. But four full games separate the Yankees, the leading club, from the Tigers, who are sixth. There is just as big a gap between the Dodgers, leaders of the National League race, and the Braves, who are second, as there is between the first six clubs in the Ban Johnson circuit. It looks as though the Giants are out of the running as they are ten full games to the bad.

from the outfield to the plate. How often have you seen a catcher handicapped by the big glove in touching a runner? Now, if he would toss away the mitt he would have both hands free to handic the ball and could use either hand in touching the runner. It would be just the same as a catcher tossing off his mask when he goes for a foul ball.

"I know," added Jack, "that my idea will be laughed at, but I want to call your attention to the fact that when Roger Bresnahan first thought of and introduced the shinguards he also was laughed at. Now every catcher in all the leagues uses them."

Among the demon hitters that threatened the success of the Giants threatened the success of the Giants was Hal Chase, former Yank. The first three times up Hal hit safely, and his last effort was a home run smash into the right field stand. The second run made by the Reds was another home run by Wingo.

The Garrison finish of the Yanks, The Garrison finish of the Yanks, in which they nosed past the White Sox, was almost as much joy to New York fans as the victory of the Giants. The gang already had reconciled themselves to Donovan's team dropping out of the lead when the big bulletin came as the crowd was souring over the field. Right with it came the word that the Dodgers had conquered, and, all in all, it was quite a happy occasion hereabouts.

Fans at the Cincinnati-Giant game at the Polo Grounds yesterday again railied to The Evening World's fund for a testimonial for Christy Mathewson. Though threatening weather kept the crowd down to about 5,000, there was no slackening of interest in the mavement to present "Big Six" with a remembrance from his admirers and the baseball fans of New York. The day's subscriptions were the most representative of any day since the start of the fund for the testimonial.
